

A collector equipped intake system of an internal combustion engine, the collector is fixedly connected directly to either of a cylinder-head side wall and a collector mounting bracket hermetically covering perimeters of intake-port opening end portions of a plurality of intake ports opening through the side wall.

A plurality of intake-manifold branches respectively communicating with the plurality of intake ports, are protruded into the interior space of the collector.